

Get Your Company to Pay

A ready-to-send email you can forward to your manager today.

---

Copy this email, fill in the [brackets] with your information, and send it to your manager or whoever approves professional development spending. Feel free to edit it in your own words.

---

Subject: AI Training for Our Team — Quick Professional Development Request

---

Hi [Manager's Name],

I attended an AI workshop this past Thursday evening hosted by Learn & Leverage AI in Newark, DE. It was a hands-on, 2-hour session where I learned how to use AI tools like Claude and ChatGPT to write emails faster, summarize documents, analyze data, and automate repetitive tasks.

I walked out with 3 AI tools set up and working for my actual job tasks — not theory, real tools I used on Monday.

Here's why I think this matters for our team:

What I learned: - How to use AI to draft professional communications in minutes instead of 30+ minutes
- A simple prompt framework that turns vague AI responses into exactly what I need
- How to identify repetitive tasks that AI can automate (I found 3 in my own workflow that save me an estimated [X] hours per week)
- Which AI tools are best for our industry and how to set them up securely

What this could mean for our team: - Based on the ROI worksheet I filled out, I estimate AI could save me [X] hours per month — that's roughly $[X] in recovered productivity annually
- If the whole team learned this, multiply that across [X] people
- Companies like JPMorgan, DuPont, and Capital One are already training their teams on AI — we should keep pace

What I'm requesting:

The workshop instructor, Brandon Calloway, offers a Corporate Team Training program specifically designed for companies like ours:

- On-site at our office (or a venue of our choosing)
- Custom curriculum tailored to our industry, tools, and workflows
- Half-day session for teams under 15: $5,000
- Full-day session for teams 15-30: $10,000
- That works out to less than $500 per person — well within professional development budget range
- For comparison, enterprise AI training companies charge $75,000+ for similar programs

Every attendee walks out with AI tools set up and working for their specific role — not just slides and theory.

Next steps:

If you're open to it, I can set up a quick call between you and Brandon to discuss what a session for our team would look like. No commitment — just a conversation.

You can also learn more at learnandleverageai.com or reach Brandon directly at brandon@learnandleverageai.com.

I genuinely think this is one of the highest-ROI professional development investments we could make right now. AI is moving fast, and a half-day of hands-on training would put our team months ahead.

Happy to discuss further anytime.

Best, [Your Name]

---

Tips for getting a “yes”:

1. Be specific about your results. Fill in the actual hours and dollar amounts from your ROI calculator worksheet. Real numbers are more persuasive than general claims.
2. Frame it as a team investment, not a personal one. Managers approve spending that benefits the department, not just one person.
3. Mention competitors. If you know competitors or peer companies are training on AI, mention it. Nobody wants to fall behind.
4. Offer to organize it. Volunteer to coordinate — it makes the manager's job easier and shows initiative.
5. Timing matters. Send this when professional development budgets are being planned (beginning of quarter) or when there's unspent budget at end of quarter.